

Android turn off password lock screen

Continue

In an effort to keep the data on Android phones confidential, many people have developed the habit of setting passwords or patterns for their handsets. But it could be a frustrating time when you forget the info about the lock. That means your Android data will thus be beyond your reach. Well, you may know most of the available unlocking methods require a Google account. If push comes to shove, you might be forced to bypass Android lock screen without Google Account credentials. Uh, how to achieve this? Now, in today's review, we'd like to let you know 6 incredible solutions to get you out of trouble. You can pick your favorite one to get the task done without any coding experience. You can only reset the locked phone to factory defaults, if it does not have the Google account associated with it. And usually, you may do this in the following situations: for instance, downloaded apps cannot be uninstalled, your Android phone runs inefficiently due to too much content, and the password or pattern is forgotten, etc. This will leave your phone in its factory state, and therefore erase most of the data on it. So to avoid erasing the SD card on Android phone, remember to remove the card from the device, if any, before performing this operation. How to unlock Alcatel One Touch/DELL/Sony/Samsung, etc. without Google Account: Power off your locked phone, and boot it into Recovery Mode. To do this, you should hold down the "Volume Up + Home + Power" key simultaneously until you see the boot animation. For some Android devices with no Home keys (some Vivo and HTC devices, etc.), just hold down "Volume Up + Volume Down + Power" keys altogether. After entering this Mode, you'll see some options now. Simply choose "wipe data/factory reset" option by using the volume buttons. Then touch the "Power" button to confirm the selection. Choose "ERASE EVERYTHING" from the next option. And hold down "Power" button again. After the reboot, your locked Android phone should be a "fresh" phone. Retrieve Deleted Photos/Videos from Locked Samsung 3 Verified Ways of How to Back Up Locked/Disabled iPhone It can be easy to forget your Android password or PIN, but there are multiple ways to reset or unlock an Android. This guide will tell you how to reset a lock screen password and PIN on most Android devices manufactured by Samsung, Google, Huawei, Xiaomi, and others. Lifewire There are several ways to remote unlock Android when you can't get past the lock screen. To gain access to your Android, either reset your PIN or password remotely, root your phone to change its settings, or reset the phone. For years, the Google Find My Device web app made it possible for users to change the lock screen PIN. It's no longer an option. Now, it's only possible to use Find My Device to locate a phone or tablet using the web or another device and send a message to the screen if someone found your lost device. This change doesn't mean you won't be able to unlock your Android remotely. It just means that it won't be as easy. You still have options. If you own a Samsung Android phone or tablet, and if you registered your device with your Samsung account, you're in luck. Use Samsung Find My Mobile to reset the lock screen. To enable remote unlock on your Android with Samsung Find My Mobile: Open Settings on your device. Select Lock Screen and Security. On some Samsung devices, you may need to select Security or Biometrics and Security instead. Select Find My Mobile. Select Add Account and sign into your Samsung account. Turn on the Remote controls toggle. To unlock your device, go to the Samsung Find My Mobile web page and sign in. Select Unlock. The screen lock information on your device is deleted. This could be the pattern, PIN, password, or biometrics that you originally set up. If you're using an older version of Android, specifically Android 4.4 KitKat or older, the ability to reset the lock screen is built into the lock screen itself. Enter the incorrect pattern or PIN five times, and you'll see a Forgotten pattern or Forgot PIN message. Select it and log in to your Google account to reset the lock screen. One of the easiest ways to reset your lock screen is to use special commands available with Minimal ADB and Fastboot. The catch here is that this method only works on rooted Android phones. This advanced feature edits the database on your phone that stores the lock screen PIN. If you're unfamiliar with rooting your Android or are uncomfortable working with the Minimal ADB and Fastboot tool, skip this option. If you've never used this tool before, take some time to learn about setting up Minimal ADB and Fastboot and connecting it to your phone using a USB connection. Once you've followed the instructions to enable USB debugging on your phone and you have the Minimal ADB command window open, enter ADB devices to confirm you're connected to your phone. Enter adb shell and select Enter. Enter the following commands one line at a time. Select Enter at the end of each line. cd /data/data/com.android.providers.settings/databases sqlite3 settings.db update system set value=0 where name='lock_pattern_autolock'; update system set value=0 where name='lockscreen.lockedoutpermanently'; .quit Reboot your phone and the lock screen will be reset. If nothing else works, you have a last resort to recover your device. You'll need to erase your device and start over. The downside to this is that you'll lose all the data and files stored on it. The upside is that you won't have to buy a new phone or tablet. It is possible to do a factory reset in recovery mode if you can't get past the lock screen. However, a faster and simpler method is to use Google Find My Device to erase the device. Turn on your device. In a web browser, go to the Google Find My Device web page. Choose the Android device that you're currently locked out of. Select Erase Device in the left panel. In the Erase Device pane, read the warnings, then select Erase Device. You may be asked to sign into your Google Account before the erase procedure will begin. Once you've erased your phone or tablet, it reboots automatically. The next time you start the device, log into your Google Account and set it up just as you did when you first bought it. FAQ Can I unlock my phone without losing my data? It is possible to bypass the lock screen on a Samsung phone by booting in Safe Mode. Press and hold the Power button, wait for the menu to appear, then select Power off. When the Reboot to safe mode window appears, confirm by selecting OK. Once in Safe Mode, delete the third-party lock screen application to remove lock screen settings. From there you can reinstall the lock screen app and set a new password. How do I turn off Parental Controls without my PIN? Open Settings and select Apps > Google Play Store > Storage.
